HONGKONG, MONDAY, FEB. 24, 1868 THE COLONIAL SURGEON'S

REPORT FOR 1867. THE elaborate report of the Colonial Surgeon for the year 1868, published in Sa turday's Gazette, may be considered as both the most exhaustive and satisfactory yet presented to the public since the foundation of the Colony. We shall not be suspected of undue personal bias if we record our opinion that its composition reflects the highest credit upon the official who has drawn it up. And did space nermit we should gladly insertit in extenso. Its great length prohibiting its republication in full we shall endeavour to epitomise the information it contains. It abounds in practical and well considered materially conduce to the health and comfort of the colony generally. With the Colonial Surgeon we regret that the sanito render them practically useless for the compilation (such as he intended) of an historical resume of the health of the Colony since it received its charter from the It is, however, perhaps fortunate that Dr Murray's efforts have been directed solely to furnishing a complete the Registration of births, deaths and marriages. Not only is this want annoving to those who supervise our sanitary regulations, but it may become positive evil to those desirous at some future time of establishing a precise date of one or other of these events. The report adds:-- has been singularly successful.

In regard to the deaths of Europeans this want is more important than at first sight appears, and I think might very readily be obviated by forbidding interments without the production of a proper Medical Certificate of the cause of death, and the duration of the disease &c.. somewhat in the form drawn up under the directions of the Re gistrar General of England and Wales, see Table XXI. These certificates, handed over to the Colonial Surgeon, would enable him so compile a really valuable and instructive Report, and would cost the Government nothing beyond the paper and

It is exceedingly satisfactory to learn that that the past year has been remarkable for its healthiness, and yet more that the sanitary condition of the colony has been steadily progressing in a favourable direction for many years:-

The Year 1866 I described in my last Report as "the mildest and most healthy year the Colony has passed through for a very long period," and it is with peculiar satisfaction that I find myself able to state that 1867 has surpassed its predecessor in recorded, giving the low ratio of Mortality of 2.60 per cent, or little more than half the average rate of the last ten years, or than one-third of the average rate recorded since 1845. The epidemic of Yellow Fever which occurred during the years 1865 and 1866, and which proved so fatal in Gaol, in Hospital, and among the poor of the wan, was all but unknown in 1867; only one doubtful case having been recorded as occurring in Victoria Gaol, while not a single case of this disease was admitted into the Government Civil Hospital.

The outside public will very possibly be somewhat astonished to learn that in the year of grace 1868; there is actually no such thing as compulsory vaccination Colonial Surgeon points out that, owing to the migratory character of a portion of the population. "no system for compelling it could be enforced." We differ from him on this point. There are over 10,000 native children at present in Hongkong, and surely the executive is not so weak as to be unable to insist upon every child being vaccinated, and furnished with a certificate to be produced on demand by the proper medical authorities. He alludes to vaccination being "little known on the mainland," apparently forgetting that both at Canton and Peking, to say nothing of other ports, value practitioners have vaccination establishments—that its practice is recommended in native books-and that inoculation, which in its application is very similar to the Chinese mind, is perlectly well known to every Chinaman whose intelligence ranks above that of the very lowest coolie. We fully endorse his opinion that vaccination should be hade compulsory, but entirely differ from met with in enforcing any such precaution. Upon that fearful scourge of the buman race—small-pox—the report says: where it was said to have proved very fatal, tainment will commence at 9 o'clock. while there were comparatively few cases in Victoria; but in the following month it rest to order such case into Hospital, or to migratory as at present, and while Vaccination is so little known on the mainland, no system could be enforced, but it is not employ undergoing the trifling operation. to lessen the number of the valuable lives that succumb to the fearful scourge of Small

Intending visitors to Hongkong will to life in Hongkong, are undoubtedly fied. Such offerings should be made as I don't understand them; none but experts Fever-usually of the Remittent type, perfect as possible. He urged the necessity do. of which happily there have occurred of the body aiding to express the emotion but few cases last year—Dysentery, Diarrhea, and diseases of the bowels. The Colonial Surgeon does not advance any theory as to the reasons why these should be particularly prevalent. Malasuggestions, the adoption of which would ria, some peculiarity in the water, the happy in his protest against an undue evidence alluded to in this case (in the bill this article being identified that the Water consumption of unhealthy fruit and vegetables &c., are advanced by various authorities; but we are inclined to believe tary records of Hongkong previous to the that in past years a careless mode of our choir dispersed, (and my brethren of upon by the learned Attorney General were the Jury returned a verdict of Not Guilty, who has held the post of Admiral of the sun, have been the chief exciting causes. The concluding paragraphs of the general remarks prefixed to the more official portion of the report contain incidenta allusions to two subjects of interest. One is the peculiar constitution of the native spleen which is so "friable" that the slightest violence is apt to cause death. statement of existent facts. in which he This peculiarity of the Chinese race. The first point to which he directs at | shared we believe by the Bengali and tention is the absence of any system for other Indian tribes, has doubtless left its mark upon the peculiar legislation which deals with offences, involving what we consider but trifling violence. The other subject to which we allude is the effect upon the health of the colony produced by the absence or presence of trees, of which so many were destroyed in the late typhoons. The theory is not at all new, but has not, so far as we are aware been applied heretofore to Hongkong We must here take leave of the report reserving any remarks upon its detail to a future issue.

ATTENTION is drawn by our morning contemporary to the very great inconvenience caused to those residing on shore by the number of guns by which the Naval and Military authorities think necessary to mark the progress of time in Hongkong. We most fully agree with the opinion that they are useless to the public, and cannot be of any great service to the naval forces stationed More than that, the conformation of the island, backed by lofty hills, causes the boom of a heavy gun to strike the ear with peculiar force, which to the many invalids in the colony is a positive and painful nuisance, especially to ladies. We of naval etiquette, but would suggest to seals are not the same. confer a real boon upon Hongkong to und the death of only 56 Residents | directing that all time-guns be fired, when practicable from the broadside away from the City. SUPREME COURT IN CRIMINAL SESSION. Before the Hon. Chief Justice and a Jury.

Feb. 22, 1868. The Jurous called were as follows: Messra Smidt, Aylmore, MacVicar, Ward Silveira, Jorge, and Moss.

Lucy Yook Fei was charged with having erjured himself in evidence given during he hearing of a case in the Summary Jurisliction Court on the 14th January last, Mr Whyte (who appeared for the prisoner, instructed by Mr Gaskell) objected that particulars of the alleged perjury were not supplied, according to the Ordinance of 1865; and an adjournment was ordered in order that such particulars should On the re-assembling of the Court, M

Holmes, clerk of the Summary Jurisdiction Court, produced the proceedings in that Court in respect to the suit of Wong Cheons Yeon v. Luey Yook Fei.

Raphael Rozario, interpreter to the Court, deposed to the effect that the pri soner, on being duly declared in the suit referred to, prisoner (then defendant) denied the signature on the promissory notes produced to be his name, and averred that the man Lucy Yook Fei had gone to Shang-The prisoner further declared that Lucy Yook Fei had been in the same employ as he was; but that he had gone to Shanghai. —By Mr Whyte: Both notes are are quite aware that no remonstrances signed, but the handwriting is different from Colonists will alter the usual rules | The signatures are also different, and the

Wong Cheong Yeen, a student, plaintiff in the Summary cause, identified the prisoner as the man who borrowed $200 from Prisoner had paid him interest on the money borrowed more than once (produced a book, with an entry of $4 interest, bearing stamp of "Yook Fei"). He sometimes got the interest directly from prisoner : sometimes he sent an old woman t: fetch him. A question was asked by prisoner and witness, as follows: "Did I not and old woman have been at prisoner's place and quarrelling about the money? To which he answered that he had not. Witness now again declared that he had not been to ask money of prisoner.—By Mr Whyte: I am nineteen years of age; my father left Hongkong when I was five or six vears old, and I have not seen him since. Chun Achew is my servant. I live by writing English documents, and lending out the earnings at interest. The first note was dated March 1864, and the first interest paid was on 9th Sept., 1865. I did not apply for the principal or interest, but the old woman did, previous to September, 1865. Knew no other man named Yook Was in St. Paul's College. The jury were aware that it required two witnesses to support an indictment for perjury. The prisoner, who had been a long time in Hongkong, knew full well what were the penalties for perjury, and it was most un likely that he would imperil his name and his reputation for such a paltry sum. Again, the case of the prosecution was a very suspi cious case. The jury would not fail to note the unlikely circumstances which appeared in his cross-examination of the boy Cheons Yeen regarding the advancement of the money; and also the confusion of the ol woman when he tested her knowledge the prisoner's name. The jury would. ter he had produced the evidence on t of his case, come to a conclusion which would throw discredit upon the statements

Mr Hazeland deposed to the fact that he had been engaged as attorney on two occasions by the prisoner, who sued under the name of Lucy Atung.

Lee Acheong (who was a witness in the Summary Court and is now indicted perjury in the same case), again deposed that prisoner's name was Lucy Atung; that Wong Cheong Yeen and Chun Achew were the Compradore's room at the Rice fills in July 1866, when they asked Lucy look Fei for the money. It was a peculiar case, inasmuch as the very words of the particulars of the case had been used by the witnesses for the prosecution. As a matter of evidence, they had to find a balance of evidence or veracity on the one side or other before they could return a verdict. He thought it a strange ircumstance that the woman who was said to be present when the money was advanced who was observed in Court, was not called by the prosecution. They would have to come to a thorough and distinct conclusion that the balance was on the one side, so far as the evidence went, the prisoner stood in as good a position as any of the witnesses, and he was very glad that he did not have the duty of deciding between the two. thought there was a great want of evidence on either side for so delicate a case as the

The Attorney General remarked that there had not been a single witness produced except Achun (whom he counted nobody to prove that the prisoner's name was Luev Yook Fei.

The Finding of the Court. The Loss of the Niphon is owing primarily to unusually strong indraught, and naccurate and deceptive bearings, partly owing to wrong delineation of Land to the westward on the Chart; and secondarily to mistaken estimate of the distance of the land visible before the ship struck, and the existence of an uncharted reef projecting from House Hill, the description of which on her way to Siam and as customary place in "China Pilot" as steep to, is also l'saluted her—but no notice was taken on from all blame for her loss; which was an | she would acknowledge the Zebra's salute accident incidental to the Night Navigation | Two or three rather hot messages passed from loss, and that the best means were | serious. We take the following items from the Straits papers to Feb. 8:-

It is currently reported (says the Times) that H. E. the Governor will proceed to Batavia shortly after his return from Penang, in company with Vice Admiral Sir Harry Keppel, K.C.B., in H. M.'s Rodney. for the purpose of making some enquiries regarding the encroachments of the Dutch. on the Coast of Sumatra.

Dutch fleet in the East Indies during the last three years, came up from Batavia yesterday (Feb. 4) in H. N. M.'s steamer Ardioeno, and will proceed to Europe by the French Mail now due from Hongkong, naving been lately relieved by his successor Vice Admiral Andreae.

We do not know whose duty it is in Fort Canning to see that the salutes of foreign men-of-war are properly returned but we have noticed lately that the return salutes from Fort Canning have been given neither after the proper interval which is required by etiquette and courtesy, nor with the precision which is usually expected from European Artillerymen. The Fort takes no notice for a long time of the salutes, and when it does so, the firing is extremely irregular, -not to say, slovenly We are informed on good authority, that this negligence has led to a serious misunderstanding between the officers of the Zebra and those of the Dutch men-of-war Ardioeno. It appears that the Dutch Admiral Fabius, on his arrival on the 4th. gave the usual salute but received no reply. Shortly after the Zebra passed the Ardjoeno therefore open to misconception.
